Not illustrated. 1844 Excerpt: . to perish, rather than have a majority of the Council perish in the matter of their decision. The six able and influential members who voted for my acquittal, he would gladly have the world believe, did not mean what they declared by their vote, so that four of them have felt it necessary to publish letters, stating that they voted understandingly, and meant thereby to negative the doings of the Council. Now certainly I have as much respect for the decisions of Ecclesiastical Councils as the gentleman himself, and as a body, that Council was composed of as wise and judicious men as can be found in our Churches. And circumstanced as as they were, I am not disposed to blame them for their result. But when further light is beaming on a subject with which they were but partially acquainted, I do not think it right for A member of the Council to represent that light as darkness. I ask for nothing but fair play, and an opportunity to establish my innocence, which indeed ought to be taken for granted till guilt is proved. But the Council thought my innocence was not proved, and therefore guilt must follow of course, thus reversing the common principles of justice. And is there a member of that Council who might not be charged with crimes of which it would be utterly impossible to prove himself innocent? Now to represent light as darkness in this mattter, seems too...
