The men s cells are furnished with water closets and hydrant, having a liberal supply of water, and with the contemplated improvements at this place, I think the water supply will be unlimited. There is also in the prison building a large bath room and dining room. The former is provided with three tanks eight by ten feet, and supplied with hot water during the cold weather. The hospital and kitchen are in separate buildings, the former is some distance from the cells and consist of one large ward holding fourteen beds, and provided with water closet and hydrant, a medicine room, bath...
