Dare you not confide in me?--Do you think, Patty, you have a friend in the world would sympathize with you more sincerely than I? Pat. What shall I answer? Aside--No, my lord; you have ever treated me with a kindness, a generosity of which none but minds like yours are capable: you have been my instructor, my adviser, my protector: but, my lord, you have been too good: when our superiors forget the distance between us, we are sometimes led to forget it too: had you been less condescending, perhaps I had been happier. Lord A. And have I, Patty, have I made you unhappy; I, who would sacrifice my own felicity to secure yours? Pat. I beg, my lord, you will suffer me to be gone: only believe me sensible of all your favours, though unworthy of the smallest. Lord A. How unworthy?--You merit every thing; my respect, my esteem, my friendship, and my love!--Yes, I repeat, I avow it: your beauty, your modesty, your understanding, has made a conquest of my heart. But what a world do we live in! that while I own tin s, while I own a passion for you, founded on the justest, the noblest basis, I must at the same time confess Eho tear of that world, its taunts, its reproaches. Pat. Ah, sir, think better of the creature you have raised, than to suppose I ever entertained a hope tending to your dishonour: would that be...
